

RUSSIA HURLS SATELLITE INTO SPACE

With G. E. Mortimore

WESTERN scientists have taken the news of the Russian satellite like true sportsmen.

Both the Americans and the Russians were trying to knock a mechanical ball into the sky first. The Russians made it. From the American ranks came a burst of well-bred applause, like clapping for an opponent's good stroke in a celestial cricket match.

In this the spirit that wins a world series, or a cold war? "Good shooting fellows," the western scientists are saying. "It couldn't happen to a nicer team."

But scientists are noted for their poor competitive spirit. Some of them are not interested in winning anything. The extremists among them don't even want to kill any foreigner. They just want to find out things.

Even when they are playing hard for their own side, however, they respect the achievements of other scientists, no matter whose colors they wear.

There are scientists on both the big teams. Are they bringing back some of the old spirit of knightly sportsmanship to the struggle for power between nations?

They're Gentlemen

No doubt of it: the scientists are gentlemen. If war breaks out, their presence on both sides may give the fight a measure of grace and good-will which has been absent too long.

One can imagine radio messages after the start of hostilities:

"Well played, Russians, you have just destroyed New York."

"Congratulations, Yankee comrades. Your last rocket with hydrogen warhead made a direct hit on the Kremlin. Moscow is a radioactive swamp."

"Oh, hard luck. You missed New Orleans. But you knocked off a good slice of Chicago."

"Sorry, Latin American friends. We seem to have obliterated Buenos Aires."

"Quite all right, Senior Russian fellow-scientist."

"America calling. We'll done, Russians. Your last missile was a direct hit. All the citizens of Little Rock have been integrated at last."

"Russians answering. Sorry to say your last rocket went astray, and liberated Budapest. Better luck next time."

Ending Yom Kippur

Blowing the shofar or ram's horn today, Rabbi Philip Kleinman will signify the end of the 100th celebration of Yom Kippur, or Day of Atonement, by Victoria's Jewish congregation in Temple Emanuel. Yom Kippur, the holiest day in the Jewish calendar, started with services last evening. Behind the Portland, Ore., rabbi is the ark containing the five books of Moses, and above him the two tablets of law, or 10 commandments.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Fight for Son Still Undecided

Five B.C. Court of Appeal judges reserved judgment yesterday in an appeal by a Freedomite Doukhobor couple against commitment of their son to the New Denver Sanatorium in 1956 because he did not attend school.

Vancouver lawyer Pat Hogan appeared on behalf of the appellants, Anna and Bill Perpolkin of Nelson.

Mr. Logan said that everyone in Canada had a fundamental right to freedom of religion, and coupled with it the right to decide how his children should be educated.

Death Drop Described

Decision was reserved until Friday by Magistrate Henry C. Hall following a hearing of two Workmen's Compensation Board regulation charges against Albert G. E. Speed, 2621 Doncaster, in city police court.

Speed was charged with failing to see that work under his charge was carried out without undue risk to the workmen and with failing to secure complete compliance of workmen with safety regulations.

The case developed from an accident at noon on March 26, when Richard Aspinall of Langford was fatally injured in a fall while working on an addition to the Hudson's Bay Co. store.

Court was told Aspinall was engaged in a cement-finishing job at the ground-floor level. Finding a vibrator, used in the finishing process, in his way, he sought to move it.

He moved quickly, said Floyd Barnes, 32 Montreal, another workman, to the far end of the vibrator, which weighed about 480 pounds. Grabbing a rope on the vibrator, Aspinall yanked, and the rope broke.

When Aspinall took hold of the rope his foot was only about 12 inches from a hole left in the floor for a ramp. Through this hole, three feet wide by 20 feet long, Aspinall plunged 13 feet to the basement below.

The hole had been covered until the previous day when the cover was removed and a temporary barricade put up.

The barricade was also removed at the start of that day's foreman of the job, had exercised reasonable precautions.

T. P. O'Grady, prosecutor, said the men should have been safeguarded by covering the hole from the floor level beneath, or by hanging a net.

Magistrate Hall stated that while there was suspicion of theft in this case, there was in his opinion no proof.

CF-105 Unveiled at Last

TORONTO (CP)—Avro Air-160, the long-awaited 1,200-mile-per-hour CF-105, which has not yet been flown, was unveiled at the company's suburban Malton plant by Defence Minister Pearson.

Names in the News

Canadian Named Hoffa Lieutenant

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Stubby, square-jawed Jimmy Hoffa Friday took over full control as president of the giant International Brotherhood of Teamsters and pledged to turn the organization into a "model of trade unionism."

He said he will appoint I. M. Dods of Windsor, Ont., his personal assistant in the 1,500,000-member union.

STOCKHOLM—Prince Carl Bernadotte, 46, cousin of King Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, Thursday was indicted on a charge of complicity in an extortion case.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Actress Irene Dunne, speaking for the U.S. in the United Nations, said Friday the U.S. was willing to donate $24,000,000 of the $52,000,000 being sought for Arab refugee relief.

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy—The Pope yesterday received Tensing Norkey and showed keen interest in the mountain climber's conquest of Mount Everest.

AGANA, Guam—A U.S. Air Force C-47 with 13 aboard including author James Michener, ditched yesterday in the Pacific three miles north of Iwo Jima. All were rescued without injury.

PLYMOUTH, England—Gunner Bartholomew Meehan received 14 days compassionate leave from the British Army in 1951 to visit his wife and their first baby. He came back a father of six, and has been sentenced to a year's detention as a deserter.

VANCOUVER—Arthur John Chalk, 57, has been awarded $30,000 for loss of one hand and serious injury to the other, suffered when he accidentally touched a high tension wire on a hotel fire escape. Settlement of his suit against B.C. Electric Company was made out of court.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I.—Texan Bill Wyatt of Dallas abandoned his non-stop Atlantic light-airplane flight to Rome because of a fuel shortage.

LONDON—Author W. Somerset Maugham has returned to London to buy some underwear. "The British make the best men's underwear in the world," he said.

that "we should put our faith in missiles and launch straight into the era of push-button war."

REAL CONTRIBUTION
The minister said he has no doubt that manned aircraft will be a necessary requirement to the arsenal of the West for many years to come.

IMPORTANT MILESTONE
Mr. Pearson said the unveiling is a significant milestone in Canadian aviation as the first aircraft flight in the British Commonwealth by Hon. J. A. D. McCurdy, 50 years ago.

He said the Arrow "will be equally at home at one side of sound barrier as on the other."

"We are of course only part way along the road and no one will be so foolish as to suggest that the job is complete by any means," he added.

It would be "some years" before the Arrow would be available for operational use.

Mr. Pearson gave no commitment that the government will buy the aircraft. The federal treasury has already poured $200,000,000 into the project.

The defence minister said there have been suggestions from well-intentioned persons

"many years to come."

Air Marshall Hugh Campbell, chief of air staff, said the planned performance of the Arrow "is such that it can effectively meet and deal with any likely bomber threat to this continent over the next decade."

It has been designed to make a real contribution to the overall defence of North America.

Air Marshall Campbell added: "We look to the Arrow to fill a great need in the air-defence system in the years to come."

A crowd of more than 10,000, including Avro employees, looked on as the Arrow was trundled out of the hanger.

Avro president Fred T. Smye said Thursday night the CF-105 will have a speed of about 1,200 miles an hour but that its range will be no more than that of the CF-100. The CF-100 can operate a maximum of about 550 miles from base.

Newspaper Carrier Boys ...

... Honored Today

Chair Big as His Future

For a few wonderful seconds something the same as rising from a log cabin to the White House. But Premier Bennett did it.

"I delivered papers myself in New Brunswick," he told Paul. "There's no better way to start a career because you come into contact with all types of people. It's good experience for young men."

The honor was bestowed on Paul Kissinger, 872 Island Road, who was representing all carrier boys in B.C. on the occasion of National Newspaperboy Day being observed today.

The jump from newspaper carrier to premier is a big one, ensuring that The Daily Colonist is delivered to Premier Bennett's home bright and early.

"Mrs. Bennett tells me you do a very good job," Paul was told by the premier.

Today is the day on which all newspaper carrier boys are honored—a day set aside by all newspapers to honor the boys who make the final link between printing presses and public.

The university at Freiburg, Germany, was founded in 1457 with an initial 2,000 students.

In Victoria alone there are more than 500 carrier boys whose responsibility it is to see that the newspapers reach city homes.

The perform a service which teaches initiative, independence and loyalty, and gives a sense of responsibility and an understanding of good management.

To some it may not seem like much of a job.

But these young teenagers of today are our rising businessmen, tomorrow's leaders. They assume responsibility for the first time in their lives and as young independent businessmen they are learning honesty and courtesy in dealing with the public. They are learning there are always bills to be paid, accounts to be balanced.

Its Purpose Achieved

CBC 'Waste of Money'

Present operation of the CBC is "a waste of money" and its stations should be given to universities, Charles A. Bowman of Victoria said yesterday.

Mr. Bowman, 74, is the sole surviving member of the three-member Aird commission, which began a study of Canadian broadcasting in 1929. Its recommendations led to establishment of the CBC in 1936.

He said the Aird commission was concerned mainly with building a Canadian consciousness and originating Canadian broadcasts, and "we have now achieved our purpose."

"It would contribute to the national advantage of Canada, and to better broadcasting," he said, "to give the CBC stations to universities, free of encumbrance, and leave the commercial field to private enterprise."

Mr. Bowman said more private TV stations should be allowed and national TV broadcasting with Canadian talent limited to three hours daily, as Canada cannot supply talent for more.

Continued operation of the CBC on the present basis, said Mr. Bowman, is "a waste of money, a huge and unnecessary demand on the public treasury."

Defence Money May Go to U.K.

Mr. view of its defence and other Thorneycroft told a press conference in the United States to ference he did not expect any see whether some of this purchasing could be switched to Britain.

It also agreed to dispatch a big trade mission of industrial, farm and labor leaders to Britain as quickly as possible and to consider reducing duties on imports of overseas tourist visits by Canadians, particularly to the United Kingdom.

CUT CURBS
In return, Britain undertook to gradually eliminate import curbs against Canadian goods as U.K. earnings increased through heavier sales to Canada.

The essential nature of the agreement, detailed in a 1,000-word communique ending three days of talks, was described by Peter Thorneycroft, U.K. chancellor of the exchequer, as "bid to 'tilt' more of Canada's north-south trade in an east-west direction."

Victoria in Special Position

ONE is not surprised by irritation at the City Hall over the reported rejection at James Bay to Victoria's intended request for a private charter by way of special enactment at the next session of the Legislature. The "embarrassment" which the government might feel over the City making a request to establish such a "precedent" among centres outside of Vancouver would be slight compared with the dilemma of at least two Victoria City members in the Legislature if the application is made to the House and not argued on its merits. Neither Burnaby nor New Westminster is comparable to Victoria in its present position—but even if they were that would not affect the right of Victoria to present its plea before the appropriate committee of the Legislature.

One may picture Public Works Minister Chant on his feet before the House committee as a cabinet member and also a Victoria MLA explaining on the one hand what Victoria is asking for, and on the other being forced to declare that the government could not acquiesce to the request on the grounds of "precedent." That would be a very unfortunate position for a cabinet minister whose election promises respecting public works in this city have not yet materialized. The picture would include Alderman Donald Smith, MLA, who has publicly conceded the City's right to make its request; and Mr. George Gregory, MLA, who is still looking for Mr. Chant's invisible "court-house."

Nor would that end the "embarrassment" of the government. There are now some 120 municipalities in the province apart from the near-metropolis at Vancouver, all of them under the Municipal Act. They are organized in the Union of B.C. Municipalities, and would be quick to sense any stand which could imply that, come what may, they were to be ruled "from the book" without regard to growth and settlement. A "no-charter" stand, if taken by the government, might be irrevocable and could be damaging to the welfare of this province's growing municipal structure.

On its own merits, Victoria has a case to present to the Legislature and has every right to do so on even terms. For anyone over at James Bay to anticipate what the House would do with the issue is precipitate and improper. Every city has a right to be heard.

Misleading Interpretation

CONCLUSIONS unfavorable to native-born Canadians are being drawn from a recent report compiled by the Department of Immigration on the incidence of criminality in this country. The survey covers the period between 1951 and 1954. In general it shows that 82.1 persons out of every 10,000 males in the 15-49 age group were convicted of criminal offences.

An arresting feature of the report is the disclosure that whereas the crime rate among native-born Canadians is 86.6, that among men born in other countries is only 42.8, or less than half. Only in the category of organized vice is there a higher rate among those born abroad, and this is attributed mainly to the frequency of convictions for gambling and lottery offences against the Criminal Code among persons of Asiatic origin.

Published comments on the findings of the survey are founded on the too-hasty assumption that to be born in Canada is to acquire or inherit a proclivity for crime. The statistics do establish beyond dispute that the native son is less law-abiding than the new Canadian, but that does not necessarily prove a natural affinity for crime among a larger proportion of the native born. To jump to that humiliating conclusion is to overlook one important point.

This is that new Canadians have to be on their best behavior if they wish to be allowed to stay in the country. Until he acquires citizenship by virtue of five years' continuous residence in Canada (with other qualifications as well, of course) an immigrant must take care to keep out of the clutches of the law. At any time during those first five years he may be deported for the commission of criminal offences, in addition to whatever punishment the courts may inflict.

With the vast majority of immigrants given this double incentive to abide by the law for at least five years, the crime rate among new Canadians is bound to be a lot lower. That in no way excuses criminality among the native born, but it does show them in a little better light in relation to the newcomers. There is the further mitigating factor also that in many of the lands of origin of recent settlers respect for the law is exacted with a great deal more force than one would care to see applied in Canada.

A Busy Little Fellow

SO much emphasis is placed on boys who go astray or otherwise make themselves a nuisance that the sturdy young lads of good behavior—and they are far in the majority—get scant attention. It might be said that at best they are taken for granted. Since he performs a function too important to be overlooked the newspaper boy is hardly ignored, but he is worth mention as typical of the good stuff from which future adult citizens of repute will be drawn.

His, actually, is quite a story. He is a vital link between the printing presses and the public. It is in fact a sobering thought that the vast news-gathering of the journalistic profession may in the end be placed in his hands for distribution. In this community for example it is on him that the average householder depends to lay the world's news on the doorstep. By and large this is what he does with faithful regularity.

If it be true that busy boys are better boys—and such a thesis enjoys respect—then the newspaper boy has much to commend him. His job is worthwhile to him. It enables him to earn amounts often of considerable relief to his parents, and it teaches him that money does not grow on trees. Rather it has to be earned by diligence, attention to his duties, and as much tact and good sense as a small boy can command. He learns that courtesy and prompt service pay, and that loyalty and honesty are the hallmarks of a good businessman. Since he is in effect in business for himself the self-reliance this induces stands him in good stead in after life.

A man's character grows out of his boyish traits, and if, in his tender years he is a busy little fellow engaged in honorable pursuit his future prospects are good. Most newspaper boys are cheerful, likeable youngsters serving their seniors with earnest intent. It is to recall that fact that today across the nation the "newspaper boy" is being saluted by the press. He deserves the accolade.

Pension Plan Election Plank

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Correspondent

IN Britain some 1,500,000 old-age pensioners and their wives each week are obliged to seek supplementary aid from the national assistance board to pay for their necessities of life.

Most find themselves unable to pay rent and buy food and coal on the present pension of £2 a week for a single person, or £3.3s for a married couple. There is certainly little if anything left over for minor luxuries such as cigarettes, drink or an occasional movie.

This fact was very much in the minds of delegates attending the annual Labor Party conference here when they gave almost unanimous approval to a new national superannuation scheme.

The main provision of the scheme is the establishing of a half-pay-on-retirement pension plan for all. But the clause most likely to have election impact is the one providing for a £3 weekly pension for all—in effect an old-age pension one-third greater than the present one. Already, some Labor chieftains are calling it an election winner.

Not all Labor supporters are completely happy with the main provisions of the scheme, particularly the executive's insistence that superannuation funds be invested in accordance with recognized insurance principles. Mrs. Catherine Scott, a delegate from Renfrewshire, won a cheer when she said investment of such huge sums would push up still more the value of shares in private industry and increase its profits.

Another delegate complained such investments would increase the capital value of private industries and accordingly the amount of compensation the nation would have to pay if it ever decided to nationalize them. Other delegates said the superannuation benefit would "perpetuate inequalities of the wage structure into old age."

The party's powerful trade union wing, however, strongly supports the scheme. For one thing, most unions now operate their own superannuation schemes and have first-hand knowledge of the lucrative returns possible from investments. Ernie Jones, head of the Mine Workers' Union, says his organization now obtains almost as much in interest on its £13,000,000 pension fund investment as it does from member contributions.

The unions also are adamant that the pension scheme should be divorced from the state treasury to safeguard benefits against government "who might try to cut them in time of crisis."

"Think you've got enough control to hold 'em?"

Cutty Sark

By FRANK KELLEY

ACCORDING to a feature article in the September issue of "Coming Events in Britain," organ of the British Travel Association, the famous old clipper ship Cutty Sark, white-winged pride of Britain's merchant marine for many years of the 19th century when sailing craft were still the most glorified freighters of the world's seaways, will be something for Britons to admire as long as her story, told by Richard Graham, can be recalled through the visible appearance of the noted vessel as she rests in her old-time splendor in the fitting resting-place she now occupies at Greenwich as a permanent tribute to ships and men during the great days of sail.

For this great objective Cutty Sark has been completely overhauled, conditioned and dedicated, we are told, to the public in an especially-built drydock by Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. The latter as long ago as 1951 instigated the suggestion that was to restore the "glory ship," and which has now been completed at a cost of £250,000.

Cutty Sark was launched at Dumbarton in 1869, when the China tea trade was a big factor in promoting sea speeds. The opening of the Suez Canal in 1870 proved a bit of frustration for her owners when it shortened the Cape of Good Hope route for steam-driven vessels, requiring other planning.

Cutty Sark was to establish her sailing honors in the Australian wool-haul, which she did with great credit to builders and sailor-men. One of her records was from Sydney to the Downs in 73 days. It was outside Melbourne when under command of Captain Richard Woodgett that she performed the feat of overtaking a P. & O. Mail steamer and leaving her hull-down on the horizon the same day. Seventeen knots is a good speed for a steamer even today; but it is reported this sailing clipper logged 363 sea miles in a 24-hour day.

By 1896 the Clyde-built flyer was sold as a training ship to the Portuguese government, which used her for some 25 years. Then, according to the story, she was bought by Captain W. Downman who, surprised to see her afloat in Falmouth Harbor, acquired her for hobby interests, devoting a lot of time to restoring the aging ship while he lived at Falmouth. He passed away in 1936, when his widow presented her as a supernumary vessel for the boys' training ship, HMS Worcester. Cutty Sark lay in Thames estuary through the war years and was facing the prospect of ultimate decay when the Duke of Edinburgh had the happy thought.

Today, the article states, hull and decking have been restored to their original condition, masts and rigging entirely replaced, the detail as good as when first commissioned. Teak deckboards glisten and the golden scrollwork fore and aft as well as the figurehead of Nannie recall the days when shipwright and sailor took pride in the minutest detail of their olden-day callings.

Elsewhere aboard the atmosphere of the past survives to a remarkable degree. It is stated, with the furniture and open coal fireplace, more fitting for cottage parlor than sailing ship. The lower part is used for housing some 40-odd ships' figureheads; while between decks space is devoted to classes in navigation under auspices of London County Council. Epitomizing the age of sail as no other ship has done—and while she will never sail again, it is not hard to believe she will have a place in the story of Britain for a long time to come, so lovingly is she being cared for.

Reports from Ottawa

IT may not be unduly optimistic to look for a crack here soon in the disturbing and potentially dangerous stalemate between Canada and the United States on the matter of Columbia River power.

This has become the most serious impasse in Canadian-American relations for 30 years. But if a break is coming at this session of the International Joint Commission, it appears that the Americans will have to do most of the yielding.

There is no promise that they will. But certain facts point towards some withdrawal at least from what our side considers to be the unrealistic position the Americans took when Governor Len Jordan was chairman of the U.S. section of the IJC. Perhaps significantly and perhaps importantly, Jordan has been replaced on the IJC by Douglas McKay, former secretary of the interior in the Eisenhower cabinet. First impressions are that McKay is a more reasonable man than Jordan.

Secondly, the Conservative government seems to be at least as determined as the Liberals were to protect Canada's interests in Columbia water. The Conservatives have washed out the cabinet-level talks between Ottawa and Washington which the Liberals had instigated seemingly with little purpose except to camouflage inaction on the Columbia dispute. Moreover, the government has handed the problem back to Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian chairman of the IJC.

Crusty Andy McNaughton has been the saviour more than once of Canadian rights on the Upper Columbia. By putting its trust in him, the government seems to have run up the flag of "no surrender."

Thirdly, pressures for more power and the control of Columbia River flood waters are mounting in the U.S. Pacific Northwest. These have given rise to the belief in high places here that in the foreseeable future Washington will be forced to settle the dispute on Canada's terms. This is offered as an important reason for Canada to hold firmly to its previously announced position.

Control dams on the Upper Columbia, in Canada, would conserve summer runoff waters so they could be released in winter to boost falling production at the series of U.S. power plants built or planned on the Lower Columbia. Canadian sources also contend that these dams would virtually end the possibility of a $300,000,000 flood which would devastate many communities on the U.S. section of the Columbia.

McNaughton has offered, on behalf of Canada, to provide the U.S. with this added head and controlled flow for 25 years. In payment, Canada demands a share of the additional power which would be generated at U.S. plants—power which Canada would sell back to the U.S. because it would be prohibitively costly to transmit it to Canada.

In that quarter-century Canada would expect the U.S. to develop its own storage facilities on Columbia tributaries in the U.S. in anticipation of Canadian diversion of Upper Columbia flood waters into the Fraser River for power production entirely within Canada.

Jordan rejected this offer. He wanted the Canadian water in perpetuity, not for 25 years, and he wanted no Canadian tolls on the power it produced. His ace was the belief that the Fraser diversion plan was a bluff—that the powerful British Columbia fisheries interests would block the plan to protect the Fraser as a salmon river.

But now the Americans themselves have come up with an encouraging report on how to develop power in salmon rivers without seriously affecting their use for fish. In so doing, they may have traded their ace for a deuce.

Conservation Is for Us

By GREGORY CLARK

MUCH of the present public sympathy with conservation arises out of the emphasis on recreation. With the four-and-a-half-day week already here for quietly increasing numbers in the executive and management level, and the five-day week practically universal for everybody but housewives, farmers and people trying to make an honest buck on their own, it stands to reason that the preservation of pleasantly wild regions in our rapidly withering world should have pretty general support.

In the current issue of the bulletin of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, Bruce Falls reports on a visit to Britain in which he was privileged to see several of Britain's nature reserves, under the management and protection of the Nature Conservancy.

"The significance of this organization," says Mr. Falls, "can be judged from its definition of a nature reserve—land managed for the study of the fauna and flora or special geological or physiographic features, and to preserve aspects of nature of special interest in an area. The emphasis is on the study and preservation of the interesting or unique in nature. There is no mention of recreation. That is the purpose of national parks, not of nature reserves. Indeed, access to nature reserves is limited, and one must obtain permission to visit them."

Mr. Falls describes a few of the great nature reserves, some of them quite small but rigidly protected, even from being looked at.

Britain naturally enough is a long way ahead of Canada in such conceptions as this. We are still in the frenzy of development and exploitation. Our attitude has been: If we can't eat it, skin it, what good is it? We figure we have made quite a few things are good because they can be looked at. Hence our parks are growing precious for recreation.

"We want to see an area preserved," says Mr. Falls, "and yet to develop and use it as a park may destroy the very feature we wish to see preserved."

Canadian Notebook

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

VANCOUVER Island must have one of the best transportation systems of any island in the world.

The only comparative frequency of service in Britain is between Portsmouth and the Isle of Wight, which should not be compared with a sea crossing. Continental services are comparative in summer but not in winter, and Ireland, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man have woefully inadequate services by comparison. All of them are vastly more expensive on a literal conversion of currencies without any allowance for the difference in standards of living.

It suggests that Canadians are inveterate travellers though the reason is more obscure. The demand during the summer tourist season is obvious, but one would assume a much greater falling off in winter than actually seems to take place. This is driven home strongly in Nanaimo, which carries the bulk of the mainland-island transport. Eight ferries each way each day—the equivalent of a three-hour service—plus two in each direction to Victoria from Vancouver, are a remarkable number of ships for a population of barely a million people who can take advantage of it. Added to the sea service is the air service with approximately 30 flights each day.

In addition there are rail ferries and barge services and other freighters. It all adds up to an amazing volume of transportation which residents seem to take for granted, but it must be a source of wonder to many visitors. It seems obvious that not all the trips can be justified individually—I came over from Vancouver to Nanaimo on a nearly 7,000-ton ship (twice the size of the Channel ferries in Britain) with not more than 60 passengers. It may have returned with a heavier load, and in any case it must cost little more to operate the service than keep vessels tied to the wharf, provided the fuel consumption is paid for.

Again, like the cinemas of Britain which prospered for many years solely on the sales of ice cream to patrons—from which they earned more than from admissions—the incidental earnings of the ferry services must be considerable in the bar and coffee shop. Even so it all adds up to a remarkable service; and the surprising thing, perhaps, is that it is not matched by the rail service. There are times when one feels that the railways are surrendering their leadership to the automobile too easily, as they are in many other parts of the world.

I find myself wondering why, for example, there are no through trains from the mainland to Victoria. The train ferries to take the coach or coaches are there, the railway is there. Comparatively little extra cost would be involved, and the added convenience could be a deciding factor for some travellers when it came to leaving their cars at home. Victoria must be one of the few capital cities in the world without rail communication to other parts of the province—at least for passengers.

So much of the talk I heard up Island about communications emphasized the fact that you had to have a car because public transport was so inadequate. It is, for example, impossible to get from anywhere up Island to Victoria and back in a day by train. It can be done in the reverse direction—but not from up-Island towns and cities. It can be done by coach, but many people prefer rail to road and, properly organized, the railway ought to offer considerable advantages in speed and comfort. It should be possible to make travel more economical than private car travel, and drive-hire car services can make a vehicle available for economical local transport.

It is to be hoped that some of these factors will be looked into for centennial year—especially the possibility of through trains from the east to Victoria. Indeed a through rail trip to the Island capital of the centennial province might in itself be an attraction.

It is to be hoped that some of these factors will be looked into for centennial year—especially the possibility of through trains from the east to Victoria. Indeed a through rail trip to the Island capital of the centennial province might in itself be an attraction.

If such a service presents too great a challenge perhaps something could be done about providing a better up-Island service in each direction. It certainly seems as though opportunities are going to waste and that some of the world's most beautiful scenery is not readily available to rail travellers. It becomes all the more confusing in the light of the exceptional efficiency of sea and air transport between the Island and the mainland.

It is certainly true that through trains from Britain to the continent have helped in no small way to keep up the volume of rail traffic against very heavy air competition, and this traffic may be urgently needed by surface operators if, for example, an air ferry for motor vehicles was started between the Island and the mainland. Every year tens of thousands of cars are carried across the Channel and the Irish Sea at a cost below surface transport and it cannot be long before such a service links the Island and the mainland. The surprising thing is that it has not happened before. The simplicity of the aerial car lift has to be seen to be believed—even with customs formalities.

Plant World's Hit Parade

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS
Every month brings a new rash of popular songs which are played, sung, whistled and performed ad nauseam on the air for a few short weeks, then pass, unlamented, into limbo. Out of the thousands of tunes written and published, only a few have that subtle something which endures through the mortal-tunes like "St. Louis Blues," "Stardust" and "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."
We have our greats among plants, too. Out of a flood of new introductions, there are a few old-timers which, by virtue of their quality, outlive their competitors, and as with the pop songs, it isn't easy to put the finger on the particular virtues which make for such greatness.
We have more kinds of Michaelmas daisies today than you can shake a stick at, yet out of all the modern multi-colored beauties there is a 40-year-old variety called Climax which is still worth a place in the garden. True, it is only a single-flowered type, but the blooms are large and showy, carried with splendid freedom in a huge spray which is all the more effective for being loose and open.
Above all, though, Climax has the constitution of a horse, which is probably the main reason for its continued popularity.
It is more than 30 years since the English plant breeder, J. C. House, gave us Scabiosa Clive Greaves, still the most widely planted of all the blue perennial Scabiosas.
It was just one out of many hundreds of seedlings raised by Mr. House, and while it looked good right from the start, I don't think that even he realized the true quality of the plant. There are newer kinds with bigger flowers and richer coloring, but none so trouble-free and reliable.
Dahlias come and dahlias go, rather more rapidly than most plants, and often the highly touted novelty of five years ago can't even be found in a modern catalogue. There are just a few which continue serenely down the years, and one such grand old-timer is Jersey Beauty.
This is a lovely pink decorative of medium size, and while it isn't likely to win you a blue ribbon at the flower show, there isn't a better dahlia for garden decoration.
As with the other plants I have mentioned, I think the quality which makes Jersey Beauty a classic among dahlias is its iron-clad constitution. Virus disease, that modern plague of dahlias, doesn't seem to bother it much, and it makes plump, firm tubers which store well through the winter even in unfavorable conditions.
While the hybrid tea rose Peace is a comparative newcomer, it has all the earmarks of greatness and it is my guess that it will be with us for many years to come, among most of its contemporaries are forgotten. The delicate pastel shades of cream and pink are incomparably beautiful, but here again it is the superb constitution of the plant which makes Peace a truly great rose.

The Viewing World

A Good, Solid Show

By John Crosby
The Eddie Fisher interchange with George Gobel still has a strongly experimental look about it but it has worked out as well as NBC could have expected and much better than I expected.
The comedian and the singer, who alternate each week (NBC-TV 3 p.m. EDT Tuesdays) as star and as guest, are still circling each other, sniffing warily, and tossing jokes at one another like body punches.
Fisher's first show last Tuesday was good, lots soldier than those we have been getting from singers. It contained a sketch about Fisher and Gobel being egged into a feud by their agents, which was sort of inevitable.
Fisher then gave a flowery introduction to his bride, Miss Debbie Reynolds whose current juke box hit "Tammy" is a national nuisance. Then there ensued a stream-of-consciousness bit between husband and wife that, I thought, was awfully cute—using that word in its nicest sense. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher are a wholesome couple, all right, all right. Their combined wholesomeness is almost enough to blow a tube in your set.
Later Mike Todd appeared as a guest to plug his picture which doesn't need it. Mr. Todd is wed to a movie star of some magnitude himself and he likes to present her with little trinkets like yachts. This led to some handiwork in perfectly dreadful taste, but fortunately it was all over in a moment or two.
Reynolds, and a great many other people, did a sort of rock-n-roll parody of "Around the World"—at least, I guess that's what they were doing. The lyric largely "Yeah, yeah, yeah," a primitive noise that would be scored by most birds, but which is adequate enough for that kind of song.
It was a pleasant, unpretentious hour which slipped by quickly—and that is the real test of a smoothly running show. Part of my contentment I think, too, might be traced to the fact that the show is in color. To easy-going shows of this nature where there is lots of singing and dancing, color contributes so much visual fun that it is hard for me—who has a color set—to address myself to a lot of people who haven't because we are almost seeing different shows.
The exchange arrangement between Gobel and Fisher is, I think, harder on Gobel than the singer. I preferred the old Gobel show, partly because it had a rare simplicity, partly because I'd rather have a half-hour of Gobel every week than an hour every two weeks. Of course, he'll be on every week this way, too, but it isn't really the same thing.
The first Gobel show was a terribly elaborate affair with more guests than I could count. Unlike the first Fisher show, it had beads of sweat all over it.
It just isn't his dish of tea with all those people and setting and hoopla around him. Gobel is essentially a monologist and one of the best and I hope the writers and producers don't forget it.

Greetings to San Marino... From U.S., South Moluccas

Anti-Reds Hail Recognition

SAN MARINO (UP) — The anti-communists of San Marino yesterday celebrated recognition of their government by the United States and the Republic of the South Moluccas.
Christian democratic leaders gathered in a partly-built iron foundry near the Italian border toasted the two countries with orange juice. The occasion was no less warm because none of them knew what or where the South Moluccas was. They all knew where the United States was.
"Never heard of it," said one government leader. "There's a good map in the government headquarters up in town and when we get up there and get the Reds out we'll find out who they are."
Recognition from the South Moluccas, a part of the Indonesian archipelago which claims independence from Indonesia, came in a telegram addressed to "Christian Democratic Government, San Marino, Iron Foundry, San Marino."
"It said the two countries had much in common and suggested they set up diplomatic relations."
"I wish they had given us a return address," said one government spokesman. "How are we going to answer this?"
Recognition by the United States was not so formal but it was just as effective.
U.S. consul Dale Fisher sloshed down the muddy road to the iron works headquarters in his automobile and handed the Christian democratic documents relating to the International Atomic Energy agency statute.
He thus by-passed the Communist government.
The Christian Democrats, spirits still buoyant after three days in the factory headquarters without running water or beds, said all they needed was recognition from a few more governments and they would march up the mountain to take the Communists by storm.
A Communist militiaman, shifting his cold feet on the cobblestones of San Marino's mountain-top capital, had another proposition:
"Let's draw lots and give one of our two governments to France and get this business over with."

In the days when fourth highest of longest and strongest was the usual lead against three no-trump, Waldemar Von Zedtwitz, defender with the West cards was criticized by newspaper reports and defended by more knowledgeable writers. He opened the fourth best diamond, won by South who lost a finesse of dummy's queen of hearts. East returned a club, won by South's queen. West stepped up with the king on a diamond lead toward dummy and returned the club ten, knocking out South's ace.
Unaware that West could not lead another club, declarer tried to cash three heart tricks, but the suit didn't split so he shifted back to diamonds. West won with the ace, cashed the good heart and exited with a diamond, thereby forcing East to unguard the queen of spades in order to hold the king of clubs. South's seven of spades was good for declarer's ninth trick.
But West couldn't have helped partner by refusing to cash the ten of hearts. That would relieve East of a squeeze, only to subject him to an end play. Both North and East would pare down to three spades and one club. North would make the spade king, put East in with the club and force a spade return away from the queen.
Today, Von Zedtwitz, 48 most experts, probably would open the six of spades and declarer would have a difficult time trying to make nine tricks.

Grin Down 'The Happy Road'

By BRUCE LOWTHER
"The Happy Road," which opened at the Royal Theatre yesterday, is a road that most adults and all children should travel.

This "road" show is produced and directed by the star, Gene Kelly, who doesn't dance in it, but is stolen by two children, Bobby Clark and Brigitte Fossey.

They are, respectively, the son of widower Kelly and the daughter of divorcee Barbara Laage, and they run away from their posh Swiss school to be with their parents. Then it's a race along the only road to Paris—will the children make it or will their parents find them first?

Best scenes involve a dozen French children who spirit the boy and girl through a town, using a side-splitting signal system.

Frenzied Milwaukee Fans Turn Annual Classic into Carnival

By LEO H. PETERSEN
MILWAUKEE (UP)—This is it... a world series in Milwaukee... and even the worst the New York Yankees might offer can't make it the saddest Saturday night in the lives of 700,000 people who've dreamed of this day for five frustrating years.

It is Bob Buhl (18-7) for the Braves and Bob Turley (13-6) for the Yankees and managers Fred Haney and Casey Stengel are double-dipping their lineups. It is "even-money" on the third game of this 1957 classic and 75 Yankees on the outcome. But, take the odds or leave 'em. The story is County Stadium, U.S.A. here they've written baseball attendance history for five years and here they're writing more baseball history because these Braves, with their near-hysterical, frantic fans, are the first National League western team to host a World Series since 1946.

In a phrase, an American sports classic that has been dominated by sophisticated Easterners for 10 years is going carnival style in 1957. There will, of course, be 45,000 fans at County Stadium, such as there might be for any Thursday afternoon game of the regular season, and they'll be helping to make this one of the richest World Series of all time. Rich in money and rich in the great new spirit that is sparking baseball's westward movement to California.

CAUGHT IN ATMOSPHERE

The Yankees themselves have been caught up in this atmosphere, as much as they'd refuse to admit it, and the fact is they're in strange territory, know it, and will settle to go back to Yankee Stadium with a 3-2 lead. All ideas of a quick series have been shunted aside. The fourth and fifth games are scheduled for this baseball-mad city tomorrow and Monday with the scene shifting back to the stadium on Wednesday and Thursday if the full seven games are required.

In Buhl, Haney has named a rugged 180-pound native of Saginaw, Mich., who won 18 games and lost only seven for the National League champions. Basically a low fast-ball pitcher, Buhl has beaten the hard-hitting Brooklyn Dodgers 12 times in the last two years and always has been more effective in his home park.

TOUGH IN AUTUMN

Turley, 27, is Stengel's "homer"—the hardest thrower in the series—and a quiet young businessman. No less an authority than Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams calls him "just about the toughest autumn pitcher in baseball."

Haney, who worked his squad out for about an hour yesterday, is expected to replace veteran Andy Patko in right field with Bob (Hurricane) Hazle, the spectacular rookie who hit .403 over the last six weeks of the National League season. He may also sub slick-fielding, slice-hitting Franke Torre for long-ball threat Joe Adcock at first base. Otherwise, his lineup for the first two games probably will stand.

Stengel will undoubtedly return rookie Tony Kubek to left field and insert Jerry Lumpe, another sharp-hitting rookie, at third. Harry Simpson is expected to start at first base and Gerry Coleman probably will get the call over Bobby Richardson at second.

County Stadium affords much more accessible home-run targets than Yankee Stadium from left across to right center so both teams can be expected to show more offensive power than they did at Yankee Stadium. There, the Yankees won the opener, 3-1, and the Braves took the second game, 4-2, with only two home runs being hit.

Such sluggers as Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra of the Yankees have yet to hit the long ball and Ed Matthews, a key long-ball hitter for the Braves, has yet to make a hit.

Colin Sets Macauley Target of 35 Goals

NANAIMO—Coach Colin Kilburn was thinking happy thoughts about ex-lineman Doug Macauley yesterday after putting his Victoria Cougars through two more workouts.

Kilburn, who feels his goal-keeping is set and his defence ready, singled out Macauley last night while talking about his forward lines.

"Doug is going to have a great season," Kilburn predicted. "Last year he was below his best playing weight, but now he's 11 pounds heavier and I figure him to be good for 35 goals."

Macauley, playing most of the season with Kilburn and centre Doug Anderson, scored 25 goals and drew 32 assists last season. Kilburn, in explaining his reason for the expected increase, pointed out that the 28-year-old

Yanks Will Be Taken To Best of Cleaners

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The New York Yankees — and their wives — can have their laundry done free while they're in Milwaukee, a cleaning firm announced Friday in a quarter-page ad in the Milwaukee Journal.

"After all," the ad read, "if you're going to be taken to the cleaners anyway, you may as well be taken to the very best in Milwaukee."

MILWAUKEE (UP)—More than two dozen persons waited in line overnight for the sale of standing room World Series tickets which went on sale at noon yesterday.

Art (Happy) Felsch, the perennial "first in line" for box office sales of series tickets, was there again. He had been in line 10 days, camped in a tent near the ticket window.

Buhl Faces Big Task Calmly; New York Batters 'All Tough'

By OSCAR FRALEY

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Big Bob Buhl, a man who made 19 parachute jumps with the 11th Airborne Division, waited with understandable nonchalance today for a chance to bomb the New York Yankees in the third game of the world series.

He'll hoop up against another fireball flinger—Bullet Bob Turley—and it will be a battle between the two hardest throwing pitchers on the squads of the all-even series rivals.

But, while the handsome, stern-faced Buhl isn't given to boasting, it is clearly obvious that he faces his task calmly. "Sure," he acknowledged as the classic shifted from New York to Milwaukee, "the Yankees are supposed to 'eat' fast ball pitching. But I've got a couple of other pitches with which to get 'em out and we'll do the very best we can."

Buhl, who packs 180 pounds on his rugged six foot, two inch frame, isn't singling out any of the Yankees as hitters he respects more than others.

WATCH LITTLE GUY

"You do that and the chances are that the little guy will hit a home run and knock your brains out," he laughed. "They're all tough when they stand up there at the plate and have a bat in their hands. I'll just work on 'em the way we figure they have weaknesses."

He entered organized ball in 1947 with Madisonville of the Kitty league and, in the next three years, progressed through Saginaw of the Central league, Hartford of the Eastern league and Dallas of the Texas league — always hoping to make it up with the then Boston Braves.

Before he could get his chance, he went into service in 1951 and wound up in the paratroops. Coming home in 1953, he went to the brand new Milwaukee Braves and won 13 games. The next season he dropped to only two wins, miserably unable to control his breaking stuff.

But he gradually recaptured his stride, finally won 18 in 1956 and seemed a cinch for the 20-game circle this season when, in mid-August, he suffered a sore arm and sat on the side.

Now he'll get his crack at the Yankees—a team he last faced in spring training during his rookie year of 1953.

"I had two five-inning jobs against them," he recalls. "I did fair at the time—but they have changed and, I guess, so have I."

Pro Tick Comes Back; Romps to Feature Win

Pro Tick, a five-year-old gelding which was well-beaten by Jimmy Broomfield finally ended his winning slump yesterday by riding three winners but failed to gain much ground on Jack Arterburn, who made it 22 and 23 victories for the meet and also finished third once.

Campaigned on the Prairie circuit this summer and having some success, Pro Tick made every post a winner and wound up four lengths ahead of Bay Toe, the second choice who was moving well in the stretch.

Made the favorite by the punters, Pro Tick returned $4.10 for a $2 win ticket and gave Art Haller his 11th win of the 14-day meet which ends Monday at the Sidney track.

FAVORITES SCORE

It was a good day for the favorites yesterday as the top choice came through in five of the seven races, including the last four. There were two double figure payoffs and the even-bet first race produced a $6.70 return on the favored Graduate.

Speedy Gal, the outstanding choice of the day, took the fourth race without trouble and paid $3.60; Looks Better, trained by Doc Darbyshire, made up for a disappointing last effort with a two-length win over Penny Peeble in the fifth, and Steven C, also trained by Darbyshire, won a duel with Brighton Queen in the eighth.

Big surprise was Pancheta, a five-year-old mare who went to the post the longest shot in the field and took over in the run through the stretch to beat Form Setter for a neat third race payoff of $36.60, $19.00 and $6.30 across the board.

Favored Silent Dawn, well back in the early stages, could not find running room and wound up fifth. Scott's Drive edged Hook hanger in a photo in the second race to pay $22.80 to win and set up a neat $38.40 quinnella. The seventh race one-two paid $21.00.

New Coaches Direct Vampires Against Grid Leaders Today

Mayo Vampires will have two new coaches planning the strategy at Macdonald Park this afternoon when they take on Oak Bay Drakes in their effort to come up with a play-off berth in the Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League.

Team officials announced last night that line backer Don Brownlee and guard Joe Fry, a pair of veterans in local grid circles, will take over the coaching reins in place of Ray Mitchell.

Canucks Open Season By Nipping Warriors

WINNIPEG (CP)—Vancouver Canucks came from behind in the last period Friday night to edge Winnipeg Warriors 4-3 in a Western Hockey League exhibition before 1,700.

Elliott Chorley, a recruit from the league-champion Brandon Regals, scored the winner. He finished off a three-way power play with Phil Maloney and Bob Robinson just as Danny Summers of the Warriors returned from the penalty box.

DOBBYNS SCORES

Defenceman Bill Dobbins, with Victoria Cougars last year, and newcomers Jim Powers and Robinson added the other Canucks goals.

Howie Glover fired all three Winnipeg tallies, one in the second and two in the last period. Bryan Derrette, up from the junior Winnipeg Monarchs, assisted on all three, while Bruce Lea, last year with Seattle Americans had two assists. Goalkeeper Marcel Pelletier, Mitchell quit the club because he claimed the spirit wasn't there anymore. However, according to last night's reports Vamps were turning out to practice en masse this week and are pointing for an upset today.

Vampires don't actually have to win this one to keep their playoff hopes alive, but it would help considerably. If they could manage to upset the Drakes and score their first victory since 1955, Vampires would be only two points behind second-place Navy and their remaining two games are against the Sailors.

A loss would mean they would have to sweep both the Navy games while the Sailors also lost to Oak Bay Oct. 14. On the other hand, Drakes can clinch at least a tie for first place with a win today.

Drakes will likely be without fullback and scoring leader Ken Higgs, who suffered a bruised hip in practice. George Wilson is also out, probably for the remainder of the season, with a torn knee cartilage.

Jack Patrick will be at quarterback for Drakes, with Otto Brown calling the signals for Vampires.

Game time is 2 p.m.

Vikings Set Sights on Canadian Title

It may be a little early yet to start talking about Canadian basketball championships, but don't tell the students at Victoria College. They wouldn't believe you anyway.

From cringing freshman to haughty senior the feeling is that this is the season the Victoria College Vikings are crowned Dominion junior champions.

Vikings almost turned the trick last season. They got past Vancouver, Lethbridge, Saskatoon and Winnipeg to win the Western Canada title, but were beaten in three straight games, 81-57, 78-66 and 85-60, by Toronto YMHA Whites in the Canadian final at Toronto.

This year, however, Viking fans point out that the Western and Dominion playoffs will be held in the west. The College club has a reputation for being almost unbeatable at home.

Coach Bill Garner reported last night that Vikings have held two workouts, with almost all of last year's players returning for another season. The question of where Vikings will play is another matter. If a senior "B" league is formed again this year, Vikings will play in it as they did last year to keep in shape.

Exhibition games with University of British Columbia Jayvees and Vancouver YMCA have also been arranged. If there is no senior "B" league, Vikings would probably try and join the Seaside and Suburban Basketball League.

Leading the Vikings again this year are the six members of the old Victoria High School Totems squad, Tom English, Ed Kowalyk, Waldo Skillinga, Ken McCulloch, Art Chiko and Bob Tomlinson will be starting their fifth year as a unit.

Additional strength will be provided by Doug Patterson, Lance Finch and Jack Showers, a three-year-star with Oak Bay High School.

The six ex-Totems have quite a collection of trophies among them. Tomlinson, 63, centred, was inter-scholastic all-star for three years, once the most valuable player in the tournament, and twice was named to the Vancouver Island high school all-star squad.

Skillinga, 6'4" forward, was an island all-star in 1955, while Chiko was named most valuable player in the Island tournament the following year. English and Kowalyk, Vikings' great guard combination, both made island all-star squads twice and English was most valuable player in 1955.

Shantz New Speaker

New speaker of the provincial legislature will be former old Hugh Shantz social credit M.L.A. for South Vancouver. Premier Bennett announced yesterday.

Mr. Shantz, an immigration and investment agent at Vernon, will replace Thomas Brown, M.P.E.C. who resigned to run as Social Credit candidate in Invermere-Richmond during the recent federal elections.

The government can merely "propose" that Mr. Shantz gets the job as only the legis. House can appoint a speaker. However, his acceptance is certain.

Mr. Shantz was the centre of controversy early in 1954 when he wandered off the Social Credit party line and demanded a plebiscite to see whether the people favored continuance of B.C. Hospital Insurance.

He was then replaced as deputy speaker although Premier Bennett denied that it had anything to do with Mr. Shantz's plebiscite plan.

Mr. Shantz will receive $3,500 as speaker as well as the $5,000 sessional indemnity.

He was first elected to the legislature in 1952 and was re-elected in 1954 and 1956.

Mr. Shantz will come to Victoria in mid-November or early December to prepare for the session in January.

Monday Closing Up to Retailers

City finance committee will ask the views of Victoria retailers whether it would be better to close stores on Monday instead of Wednesday.

The action followed council's decision earlier this week to explore possibilities of having city stores closed on either Monday morning or afternoon instead of the present Wednesday closing.

"We'll have to get a wider point of view on it," stated Mayor Percy Scurrell.

City Manager C. C. Wyatt said that in Vancouver the stores in the city itself closed one day and another day in the suburbs so that people could shop six days a week "some place."

It was decided to ask the retail merchants group of the Chamber of Commerce, the Independent Merchants' Co-operative Association, and the Retail Merchants' Association for views on the suggestion.

Approval of cabinet is believed to have been given to a scheme of decorative lighting of Beacon Hill Park beauty spots as a Capital Improvement District Commission project.

The park would be lit up in much the same manner as the Butchart Gardens and the suggestion came from city electrical engineer Kenneth Reid.

Civil Servants

Bennett Keeps Silent

Premier Bennett and other government officials declined comment yesterday on reports that negotiations between the civil service and the government for bargaining rights for employees have stalled.

The disclosure came in a speech by Edward O'Connor, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, that he believed the government was not negotiating in good faith.

Earlier it had been announced that the two groups had agreed on the principles of extending bargaining rights to the civil servants.

It is believed the association will ask Chief Justice Gordon Sloan to mediate in the dispute.

Chief justice objected to the government's insistence that a board of reference whose findings on arbitration would be binding be headed by the chairman of the Public Utilities Commission. The civil servants want a supreme court justice as chairman.

BONNER IN EUROPE

Mr. Robert Bonner, who has been negotiating for the government to purchase a five-week transmission and appears to have failed to appoint anyone to conduct the government's case in his absence.

The association is also taking issue with the government's demand that these civil servants in a supervisory capacity should quit the association and says that if carried out to its fullest extent this could number up to 4,000 of the 14,000 civil servants.

Amputees Fighting For Better Deal

War amputees across Canada want higher pensions and free hospitalization for illnesses of any cause and they will fight for them at their five-day 26th national convention here.

Lt. Col. Rev. Sidney E. Lambert, Dominion president, said last night the convention of more than 500 war amputees from across Canada hoped that the new Conservative government would be disposed to grant these main aims of the association.

The 12-member Victoria branch will host the convention of the War Amputations of Canada. Delegates Sunday will parade in the Cenotaph for a drumhead service conducted by Lt. Col. Lambert. They will visit the

The scheme is part of the "Plan Now" stage of the drive to persuade employers and private persons to employ labor during the winter, when it is available, rather than waiting until the summer, when it is at a premium. The nine points are:

WINTER HOLIDAYS

(1) Letting staff take annual vacations during the slack season.

(2) Moving employees from slack departments of a business to busier departments to keep them employed.

(3) Construction of new buildings or additions during the winter.

(4) Production of products on an uninterrupted schedule and stockpiling for later sale.

(5) Special campaigns and special discounts to induce winter work.

STAFF TRAINING

(6) The training of new personnel and re-training of old staff during the winter months.

(7) Diversification of industry within the community.

(8) Diversification of products in seasonal industries.

(9) Maintenance work repairs, redecoration and renovation during the off-season.

"Most of these measures would require a good deal of advance planning," Mr. Fox said. "This is the key to the present 'Plan Now' campaign going on in the Greater Victoria area."

"This is a community effort and if everybody works, everybody benefits," he said.

COST CONSIDERABLE

Most employers know the direct and indirect cost of under-employment of the labor force during the winter months and the over-employment during summer months is considerable, he said.

"An industry which operates the year round has a better chance of a high degree of efficiency than an industry which stops in the winter and starts up again in the summer," Mr. Fox pointed out.

"Another reason why businessmen are slow to tackle this problem is the cost of unemployment to the community in loss of wages and purchasing power and well fare costs."

"A successful campaign this winter will result in an improvement in business conditions and should benefit the community generally," he added.

The second phase of the plan "Do It Now" will begin just after Christmas.

No Mass Layoff Facing Albernis

PORT ALBERNI Less than a dozen employees will be laid off at Alberni Pulp and Paper Division, MacMillan and Bloedel Ltd., according to an announcement here.

Reasons of curtailment of operations in Vancouver Division had led to considerable speculation on the local situation. The company said that while some 300 employees will be affected by closing the night shift in Plant A and the afternoon shift in Plant B in Vancouver, only a minor curtailment is planned for the Alberni Division.

Poor market conditions led the firm to reduce the production schedule in Vancouver and the same conditions are affecting the local plant.

NANAIMO MacMillan and Bloedel's Hartman pulp mill is the largest of its type in the world, and was the first in North America to use the new chlorine dioxide bleaching process, technological superintendent Walter Wosner told a Rotary audience Friday.

He added that a small log wood room which will shortly be opened, will open up a new market for Vancouver Island tree farmers in the sale of eight-foot logs from wood-log thinning.

The mill's annual payroll of $2,500,000 makes Hartman the district's largest employer.

PORT ALBERNI Householders who have retained their sawdust burning equipment will be able to obtain some fuel from MacMillan and Bloedel operations here the cause of a lower than anticipated demand at Alberni Pulp and Paper Division. A company spokesman stated the supply of sawdust will not be large that it is not possible to guarantee that it will be available for any specific length of time.

He was bathed, treated for his injuries, and taken home by his mother.

Mr. Longmore, an insurance salesman, apparently remained in the car unconscious until morning. He was eventually lifted out of the wreckage and up one block to the Island Highway where he was found by two doctors enroute to work.

Longmore's leg is injured and he is in hospital.
